

ISSS News

ISSS is organizing a National Seminar on “Hi-tech Horticulture for Enhancing Productivity, Quality and Rural Prosperity” during 19-20 January 2015 in collaboration with ISPT, New Delhi at ICAR-NRCSS, Ajmer

This is very high time to accelerate the horticultural production by hi-tech intervention in agriculture. In Indian perspective hi-tech horticulture is upcoming potential production system to meet out urban and export demand of horticultural produce. Seed spices are a potential group of horticultural produce and source of foreign exchange since India is the largest exporter of the seed spices. Considering these facts a National Seminar on “Hi-tech horticulture for enhancing productivity, quality and rural prosperity” is being organized to discuss various issues in hi-tech cultivation of horticultural crops. Details about the seminar can be obtained from society website: www.issindia.org
